Absolute Financial English is for students preparing for the Cambridge ICFE, the International Certificate of Financial English. Apart from language knowledge and communication skills, candidates are expected to know specialist vocabulary. The author has impressive credentials, having designed and implemented specialist training for bankers and financial experts. Areas covered include: accounts, auditing, ethics, insurance and banking.

The two-page list of abbreviations (ACCA, GAPP, etc.) is useful. One excellent task type requires students to present key information within a strict time limit. Although the material provides some content knowledge, this book will be daunting for the non-specialist.
